A Carnegie Hall Production Comes To Toms River Library

TOMS RIVER – “How do you get to Carnegie Hall?” The punch line to that old joke is, “practice.” In reality however, if you want to see a Carnegie Hall production, come out 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 24 to the Toms River Branch of the Ocean County Library.

Maestro Anton Del Forno and his manager created “Bringing The Great Concert Hall Music To The People.” This presentation promises to give an opportunity to experience a free virtuoso performance.

The concert program will include selections of various composers, including original works. Meet the maestro after the concert and ask him any questions you may have.

The branch is located at 101 Washington Ave. Toms River. This program is free but registration is required. To register call 732-349-6200 or visit theoceancountylibrary.org.

Parking is free after 5 p.m. in the top two levels of the Toms River parking garage located behind the library and in the Ocean County parking garage on Hooper Avenue.
